

Portrait of a Fishing Village

Callaway Fish House

This community caught mullet in the lagoon with nets from the mid 1800s to the present day. Rack in this picture were used for drying nets that were made from either cotton or linen.

One of the first exhibits created about the early settlement of Gulf Shores. It tells of the lives and livelihood of some of the earliest settlers along the Little Lagoon.

Entertainment for children and adults centered around their life along the water.
