Hurricane Delta Update #3:

Mandatory Evacuation Order Issued by Governor Ivey for All Visitors and Tourists along Alabama’s Gulf Coast

Gulf Shores, Ala. – Governor Kay Ivey has declared a state of emergency in advance of Hurricane Delta’s arrival along the Gulf Coast and has issued a MANDATORY EVACUATION for tourists and vacationers along the Alabama Gulf Coast effective at 7 a.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 7.

This mandatory evacuation includes:

- Covered Areas – All locations south of the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway including Fort Morgan, Gulf Shores, Orange Beach, Ono Island and Dauphin Island.
- Covered Persons – The evacuation order applies to any person in the areas listed who does not possess a hurricane pass or decal issued by a municipal government located in the covered areas. Hurricane passes or decals include those issued to residents, contractors, property management companies or other businesses.

In addition to this order, Mayor Robert Craft recommends all residents living in low-lying areas pay close attention to the track of this storm as possible changes could occur with little notice.
